Can't be done!

Try to make some baking powder yourself. Buy the cream of tartar and soda, mix them in the right proportions.

Then imagine that you are the manufacturer, and have to make a profit, and besides, sell it to the grocer at such a price that he can make a profit too.

Ask your grocer to sell you his best cream of tartar, see what it costs, and see if you can make pure good baking powder for 25 or 30 cents a pound.

It can't be done.

Schilling's Best—at your grocer's—is the best of the right-price baking powders.

REPLY OF BISHOP WILLIS.

in his hands a single line intimating the Bishop's approval of a church in the Punahou district, until after the union of the two congregations.

The Bishop admits that it seemed to him on receiving Mr. Osborne's letter that, if there had been a great influx of church people into that district between April and July, a church there might be desirable, but: "Mr. Osborne's letter contained no data on which an opinion could be formed on the other side of the globe. Therefore no opinion was expressed."

Further, the Bishop says that Mr. Osborne as his commissary could not take action which, under the constitution, the Bishop himself could not take without consulting his chapter. Mr. Osborne did not take such a course, and he received a strong remonstrance from Canon Kitchin on the subject. When, in face of this remonstrance and without waiting for replies to his letters to the Bishop, Mr. Osborne proceeded to the purchase of a lot and the erection of a building thereon, "he was embarking in a private venture, with which the Bishop has nothing to do."

The Board of Trustees before mentioned could not defend the Punahou property at law if it were attacked, as it is the private property of the three gentlemen who hold it.

Mr. Osborne had caused a letter to be written to the Wardens of the Cathedral by Cecil Brown, as his attorney at law, enjoining them from disbursing any money coming into their hands, "until such time as it has been decided by the proper authorities in England who is entitled to receive the same." Upon this incident the Bishop remarks: "No authorities in England having any jurisdiction in the matter, the effect of this injunction, if enforced, would have been to stop the services of the cathedral sine die."

In conclusion Bishop Willis relates how he had, on March 31, 1898, declared all the offices to which he appointed the Rev. John Osborne to be vacant, because the incumbent had "released himself from the solemn obligations to observe the statutes of the cathedral," etc.

For the rest, the Bishop completes his case by publishing the correspondence showing that Mr. Osborne had refused to produce to Mr. Kenny, British Consul General—acting on the Bishop's behalf—the letter from which he quoted the alleged approval of the Bishop to his new church scheme. The refusal was made on the ground that it was a private letter, which the recipient could not give to the public. On his part the Consul General, replying to the Bishop, states that his certificate to the genuineness of the extract, which Mr. Osborne gave in his pamphlet, was made out in the usual notarial form and, in effect, was but a formal performance of an official function. He compared the passage indicated with the original, and at the time he was quite unaware of the difference existing between the Bishop and Mr. Osborne. In this connection it should be stated that the Bishop, in the body of his reply herein summarized, says regarding the pamphleteer's plea of privacy, "that the extract read from the pulpit, and published in the pamphlet, is just as private as the rest of the letter, and no more so."
